An activities register must be compiled.

The Teaching Board, on reasoned request by the PhD student, may authorize remunerated activities verifying their compatibility with the successful conduct of educational activities (teaching and research) related to the course. In particular, it is important to note that for doctoral students who have been awarded a scholarship the activities should be limited to those consistent with the student training; for doctoral students without a scholarship each case must be specifically assessed with special attention to the possible incompatibility without this leading to the violation of Constitutional rights, such as the right to education for those who are capable and deserving yet do not have financial means.

As an integral part of the educational project, under the approval of both the Teaching Board and the involved teaching structures, without any increase of the PhD scholarship, the PhD students can carry out tutorship and supplementary teaching activities for first and second level undergraduate students, for no more than forty hours each academic year. The PhD students of the medical area can take part in the clinical activities, according to the provisions in the article 4 of these regulations. The limit is abrogated at the end of the third year.

The University regulations ensure to the PhD students a representation on the Board of Doctorate to deal with educational and organizational problems.

The attendance of the PhD classes may be suspended by decision of the Teaching Board, up to a maximum of one year, in cases of maternity, military or civil service, documented serious illness, holding the right to the scholarship fruition but with the interruption of the payment, to be re-instated on resuming attendance.

The PhD student cannot be enrolled at the same time in a postgraduate school or at a degree course. In case a selected candidate for a PhD course results to be enrolled in a postgraduate school or in a degree course, he must resign any attendance before the start of the PhD course.

The students enrolled at TFA (Tirocinio Formativo Attivo) or Master courses or Post Graduate Schools can delay the starting date of the doctoral activities for no more than three months from the effective starting date of the PhD course. The delayed period can be recovered within the legal duration of the course, according to the indications of the Teaching Board.

If this period should be longer than three months, but not exceeding one year, the activities related to the PhD course must be considered deferred.

The PhD scholarship fruition is compatible with other incomes, even if earned continuously during the solar year, if it does not exceeds the maximum limit set by the regulations in force. On the contrary, the scholarship will be revoked for the entire year if the amount is exceeded. The student concerned must annually declare his income and communicate any excess of the limit prescribed.

By the date set by the Teaching Board, for the purposes of the annual evaluation examinations, the student is required to submit to the Teaching Board a written report concerning the research activities carried out and the achieved results, as well as the certificates of attendance at seminars and congresses or other academic initiatives, together with the scientific publications. The positive evaluation by the Teaching Board permits the student to be admitted to enroll for the following year of the course or to be admitted to take the final examination, if he is already enrolled in the last year of the course.

The Teaching Board can propose, by a motivated decision and after hearing the PhD student concerned, to temporarily suspend the student from the course or to exclude the student, losing as a consequence his scholarship benefit, in case of:

The final exam evaluation Commissions will be formed and appointed for each PhD course, according to the above mentioned PhD rules.

The final exam can only be taken once.

Art. 19 – The University checks the veracity of candidates self-certifications. In case of false statements the candidates will be excluded from the selection procedures, or revoked if already enrolled after having passed the selection, subject to the penalties provided by art. 76 of Law n° 445/2000.

Art. 20 – The University, in accordance with Legislative Decree 30.06.2003 n° 196, commits itself to use the candidate's personal data for institutional and selection procedures purposes.

The candidate participation to the selection procedures implies, according to the abovementioned rules, a tacit consent to the publication of his personal data and those concerning the selection results in the university website.
